

Ubiquity / Ambient Intelligence

Ambient Intelligence (Aml) concepts have been developed in the late 90's, aiming at creating electronic environments sensitive and responsive to the presence of people. Architecture wise, the supporting hardware system is embedded inside the environment and mostly invisible to the user, while the intelligence is distributed throughout the information network.

The presentation will describe current typical applications and adress technology and business requirements for Aml further deployment.

Jean-Bernard THEETEN